LAS VEGAS CITY COUNCIL GIVES UNANIMOUS APPROVAL

To 10-Year Plan To Reduce Homelessness

The sights are familiar in cities across America and in our own back yard; people on the streets, living desperate lives. Las Vegas took a major step forward when the City Council unanimously approved a 10-year plan to end homelessness.

Philip Mangano, the executive director of the United States Interagency Council on Homelessness, came from Washington to show support for the plan at the City Council meeting. He gives the plan high marks and said that it will position Las Vegas to get more federal funding. Mangano said that the 10-year planning process is a realistic way to address homelessness, given the incremental nature of government funding and the fact that the problem has grown over a 20-year period.

Director Mangano said, "Las Vegas will no longer fund programs that endlessly serve homeless people, rather will be investing in the result of ending their homelessness." He added that the plan not only makes sense, but it makes dollars and sense with programs that will result in reduced emergency health care costs and reduced law enforcement costs.

The city's strategy is to place 900 chronic, temporary, and/or episodic homeless individuals/families in housing and to prevent 1,000 individuals and/or families from entering the cycle of homelessness during the next 10 years. It also includes working with North Las Vegas, Clark County and Henderson to address the issue of homelessness as a region.

Mayor Oscar B. Goodman meets with Philip Mangano on the 10-year plan to end homelessness.

The city's 10-year plan to end homelessness includes initiatives to:

1. Promote interagency coordination of human service delivery programs.
2. Increase the availability of stable and sustainable housing.
3. Enhance coordination between non-profit organizations and government.
4. Prevent individuals and families from becoming homeless.
5. Provide seamless client services through effective partnerships.
6. Foster self sufficiency through access to education, training and employment opportunities.
7. Facilitate the transition from homelessness through intensive case management.
8. Increase access to medical, dental and vision care services.
9. Ensure availability of basic needs services.
10. Improve availability of mental health services.
11. Improve substance abuse treatment programs.

MENTORING: MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Over the past several years, schools in Las Vegas have experienced a steady growth in student populations. This rapid and continued growth has presented the school district with many challenges including the construction of new schools, hiring new teachers, teaching a more diverse student population, and providing adequate funding for the nation's fifth largest school district.

School officials continue to address these challenges, but one challenge in particular, the high school dropout rate, has had a noticeable change. For the past several years, Las Vegas' high school dropout rate has actually decreased. While the dropout statistics are improving, it remains well above the national average. A variety of programs are in place to address this important challenge. One proven program, the Stay in School Mentoring Project, is keeping students in school in addition to providing additional benefits.

Studies conclude that mentoring relationships work. A recent study published by Child Trends, titled "Mentoring: A Promising Strategy for Youth Development," found that youth who participate in mentoring relationships experience a number of positive benefits. In terms of educational achievement, mentored youth have better attendance, a better chance of going on to higher education, and better attitudes towards school. In terms of health and safety, mentoring appears to help prevent substance abuse and reduce some negative youth behaviors. On the social and emotional development front, taking part in mentoring promotes positive social attitudes and relationships. Mentored youth tend to trust their parents more and communicate better with them.

Since 1997, the Clark County School District, through its School-Community Partnership Program, has provided a one-on-one mentoring program, Stay in School Mentoring Project, to students at "high-needs" elementary and middle schools. Mentors are recruited from the community, interviewed, fingerprinted, undergo background checks, and participate in a mentor training program. Mentors meet with their assigned student once a week for an hour at the school site.

For additional information about the Stay in School Mentoring Project, call 702-799-6560 or visit www.ccsd.net/schools/pdf/mentor/Stay-in-SchoolMentoring.PDF.

Facts

- Today in the United States there are 35.2 million young people (10–18 years of age). One out of ten of these young people will not finish high school. About half of young Americans – 17.6 million young people – want or need caring adult mentors to help them succeed in life. Of those 17.6 million young people, 2.5 million are currently in formal mentoring relationships. That means 15.1 million youth still need formal mentoring relationships.
- According to Nevada KIDS COUNT Data Book: 2005, Nevada's high school dropout rate has decreased from 6.3 percent in 2001-2002 to 6.0 percent in 2002-2003. In Las Vegas, the high school dropout rate has also decreased from 7.8 percent in 2001-2002 to 7.6 percent in 2002-2003.

DOWNTOWN SENIOR SERVICES CENTER OPENS FOR BUSINESS

The Downtown Senior Services Center officially opened on May 9. The center offers senior citizens a centralized location to get much-needed services. Mayor Oscar B. Goodman and Councilman Lawrence Weekly hosted the ceremony to welcome local seniors to use the new facility. The center is located at Ninth and Bridger Streets, in the former First Baptist Church. Neighborhood Services administered more than $4.6 million in Community Development Block Grant funding for the 21,500 square-foot project.

The services seniors can access are: free legal assistance provided by the Senior Law Project; a food bank for low income seniors administered by Jude 22; medical health services to seniors including physicals and lab services offered through the Nevada Health Center Office; the Economic Opportunity Board of Clark County Foster Grandparent Program which pairs seniors with at-risk elementary school children for mentoring; and the EOB Single Point of Entry program, which offers community-wide referrals for all the services that seniors need. Councilman Weekly and the city worked with the Senior Citizens Advisory Board when developing this one-stop-shop concept for the center. The phone number for the Downtown Senior Services Center is 229-6596.

LAS VEGAS LAUNCHES NEW PROGRAM

To Teach The Secrets Of Success In A Global Marketplace To City Youth

Mayor Oscar B. Goodman, along with state Senator Steven Horsford, who also serves as Nevada Partners CEO, and Clark County School District Deputy Superintendent of Instruction Doctor Lauren Kohut-Rost, recently announced a new program called Batteries Included, designed to teach the secrets of success in a global marketplace to city youth. Batteries Included, sponsored by the city of Las Vegas,

Nevada Partners and the Clark County School District, will offer a series of programs to improve high school and college graduation rates and to cultivate professional young leaders in our community. The program slogan is, "Born with the power to change the world."

The first phase offered free "get charged" after-school workshops to area youth ages 14 to 18. The workshops ran May 26 and ended with Employability Olympics, that tested their skills. Professionals share workplace expertise on how to get and keep a job, and how to be a leader. Summer employment opportunities and internships were available to students who completed the classes. The workshops are a partnership between the city's Neighborhood Services and Leisure Services departments.

More Batteries Included programs are forthcoming. For more information on the program, contact the city of Las Vegas Neighborhood Services Department at 229-2330.

LAS VEGAS NEIGHBORHOODS

Join Growing Number Of Communities To Hold Neighborhood Cleanups

Since January, more than 21 Las Vegas neighborhoods have taken advantage of city services by holding neighborhood cleanups. In upcoming weeks, other neighborhoods will do their part by clearing out debris and bringing it curbside for pickup by the city's Neighborhood Services Department or Republic Services of Southern Nevada. Neighborhood cleanups are growing in popularity as a way to improve the look and safety of communities.

Getting city assistance for neighborhood cleanups is just one of the benefits of establishing a neighborhood association; residents can also tap city resources such as grant funding, access to planning professionals and free education classes for their community. The associations are made up of volunteers in Las Vegas neighborhoods who want to maintain or improve the quality of life in their area. As real estate value continues to climb, residents also see neighborhood organizing as a way to enhance their property value.

Trash and debris will be collected during normal pickup hours and brought curbside for removal during these cleanups.

Residents who are interested in organizing a neighborhood association should contact the city of Las Vegas Neighborhood Services Department at 229-2330. Neighborhood Services promotes, develops and supports safe, healthy neighborhoods through partnerships, education and compliance. Residents can visit the city's Web site to see what services are available at www.lasvegasnevada.gov.

211 DIRECT SERVICES, TRAINING AND REFERRAL

To Community Resources

This past February, the Nevada 211 health and human services hotline was launched. The hotline's mission is to assist families and individuals throughout Southern Nevada to overcome barriers and attain self-sufficiency through direct services, training and referrals to community resources. On the first day of 211 operation 400 calls poured in. The 211 hotline makes it easy for people in need to reach organizations that offer services. Calls to 211 are free. Residents with non-emergency situations and problems are helped by dialing 211 instead of calling 911.

Las Vegas 211 staffers handle statewide calls from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and a call center in Reno will handle statewide calls from 4 p.m. to midnight. The database has information about private and governmental agencies that handle physical and mental health, employment support services, services for seniors, volunteer opportunities and donations, and crisis or disaster recovery.

The volume of calls from across the state for its first month of February was 8,626 with March calls totaling 8,548. The majority of the calls have been from seniors about where to find senior centers, respite health care and legal issues including elder abuse. The second highest number of calls was for rent and utility assistance, followed by child care and legal services. Other calls vary from home repairs for low income individuals, taxes and where to find governmental agencies that can help for various issues.

The city has allocated federal funding to help pay to staff the phone lines but volunteers are welcome.

Many cellular phone services offer access to 211. There is a Web version of 211 at www.nevada211.org. To volunteer residents can call HELP of Southern Nevada at 369-4357.

NEW FACES IN NEW PLACES

In The Neighborhood Services Department

Orlando Sanchez has been promoted from the director of Neighborhood Services to a newly-created third deputy city manager position within the City Manager's Office. He oversees the departments of Human Resources, Neighborhood Services, Information Technologies, Finance and Business Services and Leisure Services. Stephen Harsin who worked as the deputy director of Neighborhood Services has been promoted to the director. Tim Whitright has been promoted to serve as the neighborhood development manager and Trina Robinson has moved up to the administrative officer position.

LAS VEGAS HOSTS U.S. CONFERENCE OF MAYORS THIS JUNE

The city of Las Vegas hosted the 74th Annual U.S. Conference of Mayors on Friday, June 2, through June 6. This conference was an extremely prestigious event that showcased the best of what Las Vegas has to offer. More than 300 mayors from across the United States gathered in Las Vegas to discuss a variety of issues impacting America's cities including homeland security, poverty, energy and the environment, the Avian Flu, eminent domain, gangs, hurricane recovery, jobs and the economy, Community Development Block Grants, telecommunications, transportation, and education. The U.S. Conference of Mayors is the official nonpartisan organization of the nation's 1,183 U.S. cities with populations of 30,000 or more.

Area Youth Express Views On Life As Teens During Annual Teen Town Hall

Approximately 300 local high school students participated in the fifth annual Las Vegas Teen Town Hall. Youth from several local high schools were able to voice their concerns and opinions about the pressures of being teens. Councilman Lawrence Weekly served as the host of the forum with Comedian George Wallace as his co-host.

The teen town hall concept began in 2001 when Councilman Weekly invited high school students to participate in Student Government Day, a day for students to take part in municipal government and speak with city representatives. As a result, many high school students requested a town hall specifically for teens.

"Many of us don't realize the challenges that our teens are facing in this day and age. Times have changed and it is important that our teens have a forum to express themselves," Councilman Weekly said.

Pennwood Arville Area Gets a New Look

City Councilwoman Lois Tarkanian recently launched efforts to target trash, debris and blight concentrated in the heart of the Pennwood Arville community. The Ward 1 councilwoman toured the area to determine how issues could best be addressed. The city's Code Enforcement and Rapid Response Team, along with the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department Bolden Area Command, Fire and Rescue and the Southern Nevada Health District joined forces to clean the area. The joint cleanup was an outstanding success that generated community support to maintain the area. Abandoned vehicles, graffiti, trash and debris have been removed; broken windows were replaced; and structural improvements were made. Republic Services of Southern Nevada donated additional new trash bins.

The community responded positively to the new look. Plans are in the works for future improvement activities.

Over 100 Ward 3 residents attended an educational meeting held at Fremont Middle School to discuss rodent control. Councilman Reese invited representatives from the Clark County Health District, the Nevada Department of Agriculture and Clark County Vector Control to present information and answer resident questions regarding roof rats and preventive measures for the community.

Roof rats have been documented in the Las Vegas valley since 1990. Initial identifications were made in the south/central part of the valley, and associated with imported palm trees. Reports are now received from communities throughout the valley and are often in areas near washes and/or areas with heavy vegetation and standing water.

For more information, visit the Southern Nevada Health District Web site at www.cchd.org.

Employees from a Ward 3 Albertson's came together for a beautification project to celebrate Earth Day.

Mini-March Madness

In March, Ward 5 Councilman Lawrence Weekly and the Doolittle Community Center hosted the Ward 5 Mini March Madness. More than 500 children attended with their parents, as well as representatives from Gatorade, Nike and the UNLV basketball team.

The event mixed the excitement and fun of a basketball tournament with the chance to explain how indispensable an education is. Mini March Madness consisted of a workshop designed to teach the children the importance of staying in school, a coach's seminar, basketball skills competition and basketball tournament.

"This was a great opportunity to reach out to a group of young people and reinforce the importance of an education and goals that one can reach if they work hard in school," Councilman Weekly said.

Residents 'Get In Step' With Mayor Goodman

Residents from the Las Vegas valley put on their walking shoes and joined Las Vegas Mayor Oscar B. Goodman for a "Movin' and Groovin' Walk" to good health, a community walk for the entire family. Other members of the City Council, including Ward 4 Councilman Larry Brown and other city officials joined the walk, which was sponsored by the Department of Leisure Services in May, at the Charlie Kellogg and Joe Zaher Sports Complex.

People of all ages, from children in strollers, to seniors and friends of the four-legged variety enjoyed the one-mile fun walk and a two-mile fitness walk.

The walkers received a free pedometer so they can track their steps anytime of the year.

According to recent reports from the surgeon general, an estimated 61 percent of U.S. adults are overweight.

Ward 4 Councilman Larry Brown enjoys healthy interaction with residents during the event.

One of the city's strategic goals is to "promote healthy lifestyles for all segments of the community."

In addition to weight control, physical activity helps prevent heart disease, helps control cholesterol levels and diabetes, slows bone loss associated with advancing age, lowers the risk of certain cancers, and helps reduce anxiety and depression. According to the surgeon general, less than 1/3 of adults engage in the recommended amounts of physical activity, which is at least 30 minutes per day. In fact, 40 percent of adults in the United States do not participate in any leisure-time physical activity.

Neighborhood Meeting

In April, Councilman Reese hosted a neighborhood meeting with Washington Square residents to discuss concerns in their neighborhood. Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department representatives were invited to attend to address crime and traffic issues.

School Of Beauty Groundbreaking In City's Business Park

School Will Provide Job Training To Area Residents

Ward 5 Councilman Lawrence Weekly was on hand with officials from the Expertise Cosmetology Institute, Nevada's first African-American owned cosmetology school, as they broke ground on the new project located in the city's Enterprise Park in West Las Vegas at 1911 Stella Lake.

The new 11,000 square-foot cosmetology school, which is licensed by the Nevada State Board of Cosmetology, will provide job training to area residents. School curriculum includes cosmetology, hair designing, esthetician, manicuring and teacher's training.

The city of Las Vegas is donating a one-acre site for the project in the Enterprise Park. The Enterprise Park is a 75-acre, mixed-use business park master-planned by the city of Las Vegas, west of Martin Luther King Boulevard, between Vegas Drive and Lake Mead Boulevard.

"The Expertise Cosmetology Institute will be a welcome addition to the city's Enterprise Park, and will provide job training opportunities for area residents. Since the city established the Enterprise Park in 1995, we've been able to attract several businesses to the area that have had a positive impact on the community," said Ward 5 Councilman Lawrence Weekly.

Gwen Braimoh, executive director of the Expertise Cosmetology Institute, added, "Our mission is to properly prepare our students to accomplish their goals in the beauty industry and afford them the opportunity to establish a career that is both financially and creatively rewarding."

CITY OF LAS VEGAS BROADENS HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR EDUCATORS PROGRAM

As Recruiting Incentive To Qualified Teachers

Program Now Offers Financial Assistance For Down Payment or Rental Unit

The Las Vegas City Council gave unanimous approval to broaden a program that will make recruiting qualified teachers even easier. Attracting such teachers is a growing issue nationally, made more difficult in Las Vegas by high housing costs. The city's program will assist entry-level teachers with the purchase of a home through financial assistance of up to $30,000 for down payment assistance or rental assistance. The plan allocates $500,000 of redevelopment set-aside funds for the Homeownership for Educators Program.

Las Vegas Mayor Oscar B. Goodman called the situation for recruiting teachers in the Clark County School District "a crisis." He urged other jurisdictions to, "step up for our children."

The council approved changes to the pilot program, which was launched last year, to allow more flexibility and teacher participation. Under the new changes, in order to qualify for the program, a teacher must not exceed 80 percent area median income and must live and teach within Las Vegas city limits at a Clark County School District school. Down-payment assistance is available for a home, or teachers can receive financial assistance for a rental unit in order to save for a downpayment.

Previously, only teachers in math, science and special education at at-risk schools were eligible, and could only receive down-payment assistance for a home. Under the new changes, there are now two financial assistance options for teachers throughout the school district:

- Option A – Qualifying teachers may receive financial assistance of up to $30,000 for a mortgage buy-down.
- Option B – Qualifying teachers may receive rental assistance of up to $500 per month, with a $6,000 maximum.

The program will be administered by the city's Neighborhood Services Department. Interested teachers must obtain employment or must already be employed with the Clark County School District. Applications for teaching positions are accepted online at www.ccsd.net. Teachers who are interested in the program should contact the Clark County School District's Human Resources Department.

LAS VEGAS CITY COUNCIL UNANIMOUSLY APPROVES GRANTS FOR 31 YOUTH LED PROJECTS TO IMPROVE THE COMMUNITY

Excited youth packed the Las Vegas City Council chambers, as grants were approved for 31 youth led projects that will improve the community. A total of $30,000 will help fund an impressive list of community improvements that range from creating personal hygiene kits for homeless students, to projects such as recycling, tutoring and creating a community garden at a senior apartment complex.

The grants are part of the city of Las Vegas Youth Neighborhood Association Partnership Program (YNAPP). This is the sixth year the city has offered the grants. So far, grant recipients have stepped up with more than $641,736 in matching services to improve Las Vegas communities. Grants of up to $1,000 each are available annually to youth in Las Vegas who present positive ideas for community improvement projects. Applications for YNAPP grants are accepted in the fall.

To qualify for the grants, the projects must be youth initiated and driven, located in Las Vegas city limits and done in partnership with a neighborhood association/organization. The youth groups are responsible for planning and executing the project and for matching their grant with volunteer labor, donated materials or cash. YNAPP projects may include nearly any positive project young Las Vegas residents devise to address a need in their community.

THE CARLOS L. MARTINEZ AND DARRIO J. HALL FAMILY POOL

At Freedom Park Open For Swimming

A new pool at Freedom Park opened just in time for swim season. The Carlos L. Martinez and Darrio J. Hall Family Pool at Freedom Park opened Memorial Day weekend.

The city broke ground on the $4.7 million pool last June. The pool is a new addition to Freedom Park, one of the older and most popular parks in the city. This new amenity will only add to the popularity of the park, which is located at 889 North Pecos Road at East Washington Avenue.

"This new pool will be a welcome addition to the residents of this area who are in need of a public pool," said Mayor Pro Tem Gary Reese, who represents the area. "This project is another major step in the ongoing revitalization of Freedom Park."

The new pool includes two diving boards, a waterslide, men's and women's restrooms and showers, a reception area and two storage areas.

Fees for activities and classes vary and summer passes are available for open swim times. For information on city pools including hours and costs, please visit the city's Web site at www.lasvegasnevada.gov.
